The group, made up of keyboardist John Whitt Jr. and music engineer TRONIX, breathes new life into the LA music scene

Los Angeles (July 4, 2017)—The newest Los Angeles-based production duo The Majorz is a musical pairing that’s already begun to turn heads. The duo, made up of professional keyboardist John Whitt Jr. and music producer David Alexander “TRONIX”, combines Whitt’s keyboard prowess with TRONIX’s engineering and production experience to create a fresh, authentic sound.

John Whitt Jr. is a self-taught keyboardist and songwriter who has performed as a touring musician for artists like Kendrick Lamar, Miguel, Tinashe and Cody Simpson. TRONIX is an experienced drummer and music engineer, having worked under illustrious producers like Harvey Mason Jr., Rob Knox, and James Fautleroy II at Underdog Entertainment.

“Working with TRONIX to create great music as The Majorz is just the right timing,” said Whitt Jr. “We both have incredible passion as well as the drive to create the kind of music that will both top the charts and solidify a place for us in music history.”

“Coming from the same hometown, we both have a similar set of experiences and have a desire to create something that is both authentic and edgy,” said TRONIX. “Our combined musical and engineering skills allow us to take The Majorz to the next level.”
